

Richard Norman Shaw (Studies in British Art)

Richard Norman Shaw (1831-1912) was the most fertile, representative, and influential British domestic architect of his time. This new edition of Andrew Saint's best-selling book on Shaw and his work hailed in its original version as a masterpiece among architectural biographies by the Evening Standard features a completely revised text and new introduction and is generously illustrated with new color photographs, many specially commissioned. Outstanding. . . . A most readable biography as well as a scholarly assessment of Shaw's work. Adam Fergusson, Sunday Times (on the original edition)
