

Flight Plan to Sales Success: New Media Marketing for the Aviation Industry

There was no textbook for aviation marketing. What we found on the market was outdated (written before social media, blogs, and other technological advances) or was written specifically for airlines. If you are an aviation professional (insurance, tax, law, or consulting) company owner, entrepreneur, or marketing professional and if you sell an aviation product, this book is for you. Many people who are unfamiliar with marketing and sales seem to think that marketing is a necessary evil - an exotic art form they HAVE to engage to sell their product but they want to have as little to do with it as possible. Marketing CAN be effective, understandable, and accountable! The book is composed of the best articles from the ABCI blog, as well as some great contributions from Roy Hinds, AV8 Services; Robert Mark, Commavia; Taylor Greenwood, Taylor Greenwood Jet Photography; and Max Flight of Thirty Thousand Feet. We cover: Preflight Planning--You'll learn the fundamentals of marketing, the basics of designing marketing systems and campaigns, how to test new marketing methods safely and cost-effectively, and how to set up practical guidelines for your employees to engage in social media. And you'll learn what aviation professionals should be doing with LinkedIn and Twitter. Takeoff--in this section, you'll learn how to dip a toe into social media. We explain marketing on smart phones, iPads and other devices, and discuss the relationship between marketing and public relations. We provide pros and cons for using a pen name or persona for social media, and guidance for using visual images for powerful advertising. Airspeed--You'll learn how to use social media to promote and enhance marketing events. We explain how and why to use a corporate blog, where to find and how to use the 29 great blogs in the aviation industry, and how to find great topics for your own blog. We also tell you the key questions to ask before writing ANYTHING. Altitude--You'll discover which marketing technique doesn't interrupt your prospect, why search engine optimization is vital to leverage your investment in your website, and how to improve your sales by mastering the art of follow up. Course Corrections--What to do if you're roasted in the social media, and how to manage your time and delegate effectively to get marketing tasks done. We also provide market projections and action plans to take your marketing and sales to the next level.
